BIOGRAPHY

As a Special Operations pilot, L. Todd Wood flew missions for Seal Team 6 and Delta Force. He's on a new mission now -- to protect the American way of life and rescue it from the destructive grip of the socialist ideology that threatens its sovereignty and everything that makes this country great.

With his real-world experience in finance and national security, along with a passion for history, Todd sees and reports on threats to our nation, zeroing in on the warning signs of potential dangers.

A native of Georgia, Todd left Savannah in 1982 to attend the United States Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., to study aeronautical engineering. Graduating in 1986, he immediately entered flight school.

His initial assignment was flying combat search and rescue helicopters at Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska. Besides flying local rescue missions, he was deployed throughout Asia. During this time, Todd was credited with saving many lives and even more assists. He also earned a master's degree in engineering management from the University of Alaska, Anchorage during his Alaska tenure.

In 1990 he upped the danger level, volunteering for Special Operations. After being assigned to the 20th Special Operations Squadron at Hurlburt Field, Fla., in 1991, he was deployed to Kuwait, flying MH-53J Pave Low helicopters.

For three years, Todd was active in classified missions supporting counter terrorism. Under the control of the National Command Authority, he traveled throughout the world supporting missions for SEAL Team Six and Delta Force.

Now a noted author, one of Todd's first forays into the publishing world was to place an article about special operations aviation in a 1994 Armed Force's Journal.

After retiring from the Air Force in 1994 as a Captain, Todd looked to pursue another of his passions, finance. During this second career at an investment bank he became highly knowledgeable in emerging markets fixed income and traveled a great deal internationally. Although he's conducted business in over forty different countries, his emerging markets work focused on the Caribbean.

It was as a bond trader on Wall Street that he became acutely aware of the consequences of economic decisions and their effect on national and economic security.

Building on the first-hand experience he gained throughout his lifetime, Todd made the decision to leave the financial business in 2011 to write full-time. His novels, as well as his columns, reflect his deep conviction that America needs to be warned about the consequences of political – and business – decision-making.

Economic thriller, "Currency," was published in December of 2011. His second novel, "Sugar," which deals with energy policy and government corruption was published in June 2013. Another suspense page-turner, "Delta," was published in 2014. His latest release is "Motherland."

L. Todd Wood is a columnist at The Washington Times and frequent contributor to, Fox Business, The Moscow Times, Zero Hedge, The New York Post, Newsmax TV, and others. He splits his time between New York City and Moscow.

SPEAKING TOPICS

1. WINTER IS COMING: How Overwhelming Debt Threatens National Security and How to Save Your Children's Future Before It's Too Late

The United States is stumbling toward $30 trillion in sovereign debt, a staggering figure that not only impacts the economy, but poses geopolitical and national security consequences as well. Most Americans do not understand how the bond market works and how economic security is intertwined with national security. L. Todd Wood, with both tier one U.S. military experience and two decades on Wall Street, has been raising these issues nationally since the turn of the decade. Audience takeaways:

- » What every American should understand about sovereign debt and interest rates
 - » Why is the bond market so powerful?
 - » How debt impacts national security and your children's future
 - » 3 questions you should ask your Congressman or Senator – now

2. DECODING RUSSIA: Understanding the Road to Peace

Since the fall of the Iron Curtain, the Russian Federation and its leader, Vladimir Putin, have mystified the Western world. L. Todd Wood has studied Russia since the 1980s while in the military and also as a civilian trading emerging market debt. He lives in Moscow part time. With this relevant knowledge, he's aptly qualified to explain what Putin really wants and how he is going about getting it. Always the storyteller, Todd will use his sometimes humorous personal stories to show audiences what is happening in Russia today and why. Audiences will learn:

- » About the Russian psyche – are they communists? Are they evil?
 - » Whether Russia is a potential ally? Why?
 - » What does Putin want?
 - » 10 things you need to know, but haven't learned from the government – or the media

3. WHAT IS HYBRID WARFARE AND HOW CAN IT KILL YOU?

Russia and the Islamic State have been using a concept of warfare that goes beyond the total war of the twentieth century. Information and deception are now key tools being deployed throughout an enemy's society to destroy and weaken from within. How is this happening to the United States and the West today? As he speaks, L. Todd Wood paints a too-real picture of how our enemies infiltrate and seduce our youth to carry out attacks on our own soil. Audience takeaways:

- » How to critically examine information and understand the agenda behind it
 - » Examine how to think like the enemy and how to use this knowledge
 - » 5 steps every American or Westerner should do to counter the deception and subterfuge
 - » How you can protect your own family, especially impressionable youth
